Advancing Backwards.

The President has revoked the order of General Burnside suppressing the Chicago Times. This was done upon the petition of a meeting of citizens of Chicago, irrespective of party, upon the ground that the peace of the city and of the state of Illinois would be promoted thereby. Remarks were made at the meeting by Messrs. Trumbull, Arnold, and others, and the resolution in favor of suspending the order was offered by W. B. Ogden and unanimously adopted. Messrs. Trumbull and Arnold said in a card that they did not agree to the resolution, and refused to sign any request to the President to suspend the order, but that they asked the prompt and serious consideration of the President, the same as they would any other communication from them, without regard to their opinion of its merits. Messrs. Trumbull and Arnold appear to be dodging responsibility, or they really have no opinions on the subject. Their action, or non-action, however, goes in favor of the petition, and the President must have so understood it.

It is very unfortunate that the order of Gen. Burnside was ever made, if there was not a certainty that it would be enforced. Its revocation will be justly considered a triumph. The government has undertaken to suppress the publication of incendiary sentiments, and has been bullied out of it. This will be taken as a license, hereafter, for the most outrageous and treasonable language in reference to the war and those who are engaged in carrying it on.—The weakness shown on this occasion will incite and encourage the enemies of the country, while its friends will be disheartened and discouraged. We still insist that Gen. Burnside was right in the course he pursued, and we shall ever believe that the President was wrong in revoking the order.

What an Intelligent and Educated Soldier Thinks of the Negro.

Our readers will not have failed to have read the interesting correspondence from Newbern, signed "Mathetes," published in our paper during the past year, and they will be especially interested in the letter to-day from this correspondent, giving his opinion of the capacity of the negro as a soldier and a man capable of intellectual improvement. The writer, Mr. A. C. Fish, was one of the most successful teachers in our city schools, and is known as a gentleman of candor and truth. The testimony of his experience with the freedman is valuable, as he has been a teacher among them as well as a soldier in the army. He knows what they are capable of becoming intellectually, and appreciates their value as soldiers. It is not at all impossible, as he suggests, that they may become a wall between the foes of the republic, and the white race who are battling for the unity of the country and the salvation of constitutional liberty. They may yet become the last hope of freedom on this continent. This despised race will then have the grand opportunity of raising itself from its degraded position to an elevation not supposed possible for them. We hope they will be equal to the occasion, for we care not who saves liberty in America, so that it is saved.

There are elements in the negro character which fit them for playing a part in the closing drama of the rebellion. They have religious enthusiasm, a burning desire for liberty intensified by centuries of slavery, and a high degree of patience learned in the dark valley of servitude through which they have passed; added to this, they know the south and are adapted to its climate. With all these advantages, give them the sword and the musket, and a leader who appreciates them, and they have the opportunity presented for wiping out the stain which attaches to their name and race. They may fail, but we do not believe it. The wisdom which has marked their conduct during the war—their patient waiting, amid obloquy and derision to be called, and their alacrity in accepting it when it comes, no matter what are the conditions, gives hope that they will be equal to the occasion.

In connection with the above we will say to the numerous friends of our correspondent, Mr. Fish, that the term of service of his regiment, the 44th Massachusetts, is about to expire, and that he will then return to his collegiate studies in Massachusetts.

MASSACHUSETTS PURCHASING ORDINANCE.—The legislature of Massachusetts, at the last session, appropriated one million of dollars for coast defense. At a recent meeting of the executive council two hundred and fifty thousand dollars were appropriated for the purpose of procuring the most improved ordnance which can be obtained. A competent military gentleman entrusted with the business of buying these powerful cannon, will immediately proceed to fulfill his mission.

Colonel Utley has received orders to rejoin the army of the Cumberland, with his regiment, and expects to return to his old position on Monday next.

Editors Gazette:—A soldier's life in the city is too tame and monotonous to write about in these times—the same, unvarying round of reveille, "on guard," martial music, drum-beats, drills, dress parade, tattoo and taps. To a citizen, this military occupation must be duller still. A "who goes there" meets him on every corner; instead of the hum of business he hears only the heavy rumbling of army wagons;—inexorable martial law has crushed out trade and traffic, except among a few Yankee speculators and army sutlers who sell things needed by soldiers. A recent "special order" sent the most outspoken secession sympathizers within the rebel lines, so that Uncle Sam's boys and the darkies have things pretty much their own way.

The present appearance of the city is beautiful. Its shade is worthy of especial remark. Hardly a street over which the outstretching branches of noble elms do not form a perfect arbor. Flower gardens are numerous and in full bloom. In many parts of the city great improvements have been made. A fine parade ground, or public square, has taken the place of the ruins of the buildings burned by the rebels when the place was first taken.

In looking into the affairs of any southern city which we now hold, or in a more comprehensive view, in reckoning our national forces and military power, we must not leave the negro out of the account. People don't shudder now and turn away disgust at the mention of the word negro, as they did two years ago, and perhaps the readers of the Gazette may be willing to read, in a few sentences, the plain thoughts gleaned from actual observation and experience in the life of a common soldier.

I always hated slavery in theory and from principle—hated it as much as I could from what I knew or could hear and read of it. I became a common soldier that I might fight it, but I never knew how much to hate it until I came into the department of the south and saw what it was, what it has made this country and what it is now striving to do and become. To know how to hate slavery one needs to feel that it has brought him from his home and its comforts and is subjecting him to the pain, privation and peril of a soldier's life, making him to know of the long and tiresome march, the bivouac, the bombardment and the battle field.

You will sometimes meet men in the army who will say that they want to see the "Union as it was," but I tell you they are few. From personal observation among those with whom my lot has been cast, I know they are few, and they are of that class as little to be respected as soldiers as they are greatly to be shunned and despised as citizens and statesmen.

Two years ago I should have thought the man rather too radical who could say make soldiers of liberated slaves, now I should look with suspicion upon the man who opposed the plan, especially if he blushed to the "home guard." We learn more in one year of war than in a hundred of peace. It is a long stride from "the" constitution as it is, and the Union as it was" to the proclamation of emancipation, but there is far greater distance between the condition of the poor, degraded freedman and the dignity and rights of a United States soldier. We have not quite reached that point yet but we are learning fast.

Those who croak of the ignorance and stupidity of the negro will croak less when they learn more of him.

In a former letter I told you of a school held in the camp of the 44th. We now have a daily school, held in one of the churches of the city, numbering between 200 and 300 pupils. The school is now under the charge of our chaplain, and most of its teachers are volunteers from the ranks of our regiment. If you doubt their eagerness to learn or their capacity, ask of their teachers. For my own part I have no doubt of their making good soldiers. The man who can learn his letters in two days, and to read in as many weeks, can't fail to learn the drill. I am equally sanguine of their loyalty and courage.

Any one who has heard them in their churches, who has attended their prayer meetings, and heard with what intense feeling, earnestness and intelligence they pray for us and our cause—that they themselves may be made a wall of defense between us and our enemies, will almost believe they may be wrought up to a religious enthusiasm equal to the followers of Cromwell.

During the long siege of Little Washington, we had no braver soldiers than the 100 negroes who manned a part of the earthworks. Gen. Wilde has been sent into this department to organize them into regiments. He is an earnest and true man—just the one for the work. Major General Foster will undoubtedly give the negroes a fair trial, for he is in favor of crushing the rebellion. The call is for 4,000. There is one thing which seems to me to be entirely wrong. They offer only $7.00 a month. I think the man who does a soldier's work ought to have a soldier's pay. It is a mean argument to say they can live on less than white men. I see no objection to their condition being bettered, to their living in comfortable houses instead of miserable huts. I am informed that their receiving half pay is the fault of congress, and not of this department. Notwithstanding the meager inducements of pay and promotion, they are enlisting rapidly. It is an unanswerable argument in favor of their earnestness. The cause is as much theirs as ours. Why not let them help us? Why not use all our power? The past two years have shown that we need it.

MATHITES.

The Chicago Journal of yesterday afternoon says:

Hon. David Davis, associate justice of the U. S. supreme court, has arrived in the city, in response to the invitation of Dr. Drummond, to sit with him during the argument on the application of the publishers of the Chicago Times, for an injunction restraining the military authorities from enforcing the order of General Burnside for the suppression of that paper. The case is being argued as we go to press.—In the meantime, the office of the Times is under military guard, and all parties are disposed to await the result of the proceedings before the judicial tribunal, and to abide by its decision.

The Journal gives the following account of the indignation meeting Wednesday night:

Yesterday handbills were issued from the Times office, throughout the day, calling for a "free speech" meeting to take action in regard to the suppression of the Chicago Times by Gen. Burnside. Emissaries were sent out among the stavedores and the dock laborers. The purlieus of North Water street and similar localities were visited, and the faithful were summoned, in the name of the Prophet, to appear.

Throughout the day violent threats were made in a variety of shapes. The soldiers of Camp Douglas, who had executed the order of suppression, were to be punished and murdered; the loyal newspaper offices were to be taken possession of and suppressed; by way of retaliation; republicans, generally, were to be maltreated. To the credit of loyal men it is to be said, that these threats provoked no demonstration, except that of preparation, and of a truth, that went on most satisfactorily.—Thousands of Union Leaguers were signalled during the day, and a "ready" was the response upon the night.

When night came, thousands assembled in the court house square to speak. The north half of the square and the adjoining were packed with thousands of men. Immediately in front of the court house steps, from which the speakers hurled their important rage, there were two or three thousand intense copperheads. These were surrounded by a cordon of Union Leaguers, who were quietly and confidently watching the proceedings. We know that two of every three in the court house square, last night, were members of the Union League, who were keenly alive to the cause of the hour, and ready for any emergency.

The leaders of the meeting had not been slow to discover "an African in the enclosure," and prudently shaped their course accordingly. They sought to appease, for a time, the mob spirits which they had invoked, but by no means did they wish to excite them. Their object was mob violence, and they will set it loose whenever they deem it prudent to do so. Thank God, we live in a loyal city, and that loyalty is strong enough, and fearless enough to take care of itself, come what may.

The spirit of last night's meeting may be gleaned from the following:

"The case is now pending in the United States court; it will be time enough for violence after we shall have failed to obtain our redress there."—Gen. Singleton.

"I do not count violence; let us see what the court will do for us;—then will be the time for action."—E. W. McComas.

"So help me God, I will lay down my life, if necessary, in opposing any attempt of a brutal soldiery to enforce the suppression of free speech."—Adams.

There were no physical demonstrations made, beyond a few knock-downs, in which the police invariably had a hand. About 11 o'clock, a stalwart fanatic, in a linen coat, and swinging his hat upon a cane, declared that he "could raise copperheads enough to squelch the Tribune establishment." And shouting, "Come along boys," he started, and was taken care of by the police, who kindly saved the poor fellow's life.

A CONSTITUTIONAL CONSERVATIVE IN 1812.—During the siege of Fort Erie, in the war of 1812, by the British forces under General Drummond, an effort was made by General Porter, in Buffalo, to raise reinforcements for our imperilled army. An incident occurred, at the time the militia were ordered forward to the besieged army, which is readable in these times when men clamor about constitutional privileges and immunities. It is thus related:

General Porter, by dint of superhuman efforts, gathered a considerable body of militia at Buffalo, to reinforce the fort. Early in September he ordered them to cross the river. The line was formed along Pearl street, in the rear of the First Church. As soon as the head of the column began to move, and its direction became apparent, an officer—one of those men, who, in such times, are scrupulous as to the law in proportion to the value they set upon their lives—stepped out of the ranks and shouted out: "We are militia of New York and cannot be ordered out of the state. It is unconstitutional!" It was wonderful how suddenly a love for the constitution developed itself in the breasts of the militiamen. Large numbers left the ranks and began to clamor against the order. But Porter and a few determined officers spurred among the malcontents, arrested the ringleader, seized his followers, and, aided by a small detachment of regulars, restored order. This constitutionalist—who I need hardly say was a lawyer—was hurried into a quartermaster's cart and sent under a strong guard to Williamsville, with the information that if he returned with his legal scruples into our lines he would be shot forthwith.

THE THIRTEENTH REGIMENT.—Our thirteenth regiment is leading so quiet a life at Fort Donelson that we rarely hear of them of late. We find the following in the Waukesha Freeman:

Our brigade commander, Col. W. W. Lowe, of the 5th Iowa Cavalry, (formerly of the regular army) is a man of sparkling military worth, and possesses none but soldierly attributes, is well liked and has a way and will of his own, and everywhere is a word not prominent in his vocabulary. A word in regard to the commander of our regiment, Col. Wm. P. Lyon, who is well known in prominent political circles at home, is, to use the oft repeated phrase, "the right man in the right place," is universally beloved and respected, and has the entire confidence of his regiment.

The sanitary condition of the thirteenth is excellent, the boys are in good spirits, and, although we feel at times a desire to be with the "loved ones at home," yet we are willing to hold out, and return only when an honorable peace shall have been restored.

THE REDUCTION OF HOOKER'S ARMY.—A Washington letter says: "General Hooker's army is not so much reduced by the departure of the regiments whose term of service has expired, as people seem to think. The number of regiments leaving makes an impression upon the country, but it is generally forgotten that these expiring regiments really carried two or three hundred men each. The loss to the army of the Atlantic was far by the retiring regiments is not over twelve thousand."

Officers of Hunter's staff duty that he sent or intended to send Jeff. Davis the letter published. The city has been full of all manner of rumors to-day that we have been repulsed at Vicksburg and Grant's army destroyed, and of a serious raid in Kentucky, but there is no foundation for either, other than that there are important movements going on.

CINCINNATI, June 4.
Special to Chicago Tribune.—It is reported that Bragg had thanked Rosecrans, coming north. It is known, I understand, that Bragg has moved his force and is supposed to have gone to reinforce Johnston in the rear of Grant, or to come up and attack Memphis. Rosecrans, who allowed Bragg to escape, is now pursuing him.

CAIRO, June 4.

The medical department have made arrangements to furnish soldiers, with amputated limbs, with artificial limbs. It has been supplying artificial legs all the time, but arms are just introduced. The department has contracted for arms at $50 a piece. The soldiers, of course, are furnished free of charge.

NEW YORK, June 4.
A meeting of the editors of the press of this city is called for the 8th inst., to consider the subject of the nature, extent, and rightful limitations, if any, of the liberty of public journalists to criticize the acts of those charged with the conduct of the government in time of war and civil convulsion. The call is signed by C. Prime, Park Goodwin, James Brooks, Anson Herrick, Horace Greeley, and Elton Comstock. The following is a special dispatch to the New York World:

LEXINGTON, Ky., June 4.
To the Editor of the New York World: Having been directed by the President of the United States, to review the acts of the government in the suppression of the Chicago Times, I have revoked the entire order, and your paper will be allowed its circulation in this department. (Signed)

A. E. BURNSIDE,
Major General.
St. Louis, June 4.

Special to Chicago Tribune.—The army of the frontier is making an important movement, which will shortly develop itself.

Reliable advices from Arkansas represent Price's forces as much smaller than heretofore, and indicate that there is no slightest danger of an invasion of Missouri.

Cavalry and mounted infantry have been ordered into Boone and Howard counties, to look after guerrillas, who have lately been some audacious in their outrages.

Several additional members of the state convention having resigned, immediate emancipation candidates have been brought out in every district where there is a vacancy. Judge Bouton is running in Jackson and Cass counties, and has been elected of emancipation without compensation.

WASHINGTON, June 4.
Special to the Chicago Tribune.—Private letters from the last before Vicksburg, May 25th, says that Grant was steadily gaining ground, and that both in the fleet and the army confidence in the speedy capture of the place is felt. The mortars have destroyed many buildings and two batteries. Desperately reported Pemberton's corps on half rations.

The Assistant Surgeon General telegraphs from St. Louis that the wounded from Vicksburg are beginning to arrive at Memphis. Five hundred are up already. The balance are coming as fast as possible. He represents everything for them abundantly supplied. Large quantities of ice are being sent down. The news from Vicksburg, up to the 31st, is encouraging.

The order has already been forwarded relieving Admiral Wilkes. Landner will be his successor.

BALTIMORE, June 4.
Col. Kilpatrick, in a raid back from Gloucester Point, Va. crossed the country between the York and Rappahannock rivers, and made a large haul of negroes and horses. They were ferried across the Rappahannock by gunboats, at Urbana.

MORNING DISPATCHES.

NEW YORK, June 5.
Special to Herald.—A Fairfax Court House dispatch of the 4th, says Mosby's men made a small attack on our relief pickets this morning, wounding one man. Col. Gray with four squadrons of cavalry started in pursuit, capturing a rebel surgeon.

Washington special state that Colonel Grierson is promoted to a brigadier general.

All the outbuildings connected with the Stevens' battery machine shop were destroyed last night by fire, during which there were five explosions of powder and shells.

A letter from Vicksburg, 24th, to the Herald, says that the situation there is unchanged. Gen. Carr had captured and held an important work on the left of the railroad during a whole day, but near dark he was completely overpowered and compelled to retire. The 23d Iowa planted its colors on the rebel ramparts, Col. Stone all day requesting aid, when, after keeping their colors there all that day, and after every man of the regiment who entered the fort in the morning had been killed or wounded except the Lieut. Colonel and fifteen men, they were captured and taken into Vicksburg. The storming of the works cost us 2,500 killed and wounded. The place is now besieged. Our skirmishers are so efficient that the enemy has no chance to work his guns, and our batteries pour in a murderous fire night and day. During the night the rebels manage to place cotton bales around embankments which are destroyed during the day. The rebels are constructing a new line of works between the center and the left of the city. In the morning, charge the 22d Iowa lost 250 men; Stevenson's brigade, 200; Ransom's, 353; Carr's, 600; Blair's division, 550; Steele's, 600; Osterhaus', 200, and Smith's, 350. To-day, 24th, there has been a vigorous cannonading along the right and left.

AFTERNOON DISPATCHES.

Stanford for next governor, suddenly bolt, and will go for Law, the present collector at the port of San Francisco. The election of delegates in San Francisco takes place on the 10th. The state convention meets at Sacramento on the 17th of June.

Owing to the mining excitement in California and Idaho, the people of Oregon and Idaho are much disappointed at the scanty emigration this season of mining adventures. New mining districts continue to be discovered. The last is near Lake Bigler, on the eastern slope of the Western Summit.

She brings a late rumor that the French are again defeated at Puebla and that Comonfort had reinforced the garrison with 18,000 men. The Panama legislature had passed a decree prohibiting French troops or ammunition from passing over the Isthmus to Mexico.

Refreshing Words from a Douglas Democrat.

In the Chicago canal convention, yesterday, there were loud cries for Drake, Drake, and the chairman coming forward, said: "I take pleasure in presenting to you my friend from that noble city of the west, that bright star which shall shine brighter and brighter unto the perfect day," Mr. Drake, of St. Louis." The following is an extract from his speech:

There is a talk about northern men resisting the draft. I tell those men who dream of resisting the conscription of the country, that whenever that law is put into execution, and resistance to it is attempted, it would be better to shoot them dead, for them that they had never been born.

[Applause.] A long time it has taken the northern people to be educated up to the demands of the occasion; but in the face of defeat and disaster, in the face of the vile copperhead triumphs that swept through some of the eastern and northern states last year, in the face of all, the sentiment of the American people for the preservation of their government is one in advance of what it has ever been at any previous moment since the outbreak of the rebellion. It is marching on, marching on, marching on to victory and to glory, and to the utter destruction of all who stand in its way. [Applause.] But every man must become a man of iron. Away with your puny nonsense about conservatism. Who wants conservatism in this day, of anything except that glorious old flag. [Applause.]

Do you think that your noble constitution has no power to resist attack, and to maintain itself, that you, forsooth, must become such precious conservators of the constitution? Alas! that I have to say to you is, when you go to spending your energies in your conservation of your constitution, you are spending them in the conservation of this damnable rebellion.

What we want is iron, iron men, and not cold iron either—hot iron. Burning with patriotism, bright and luminous, and glorious over the land, with every impulse that can give dignity and elevation, and nobility to the American character. And we will have it. We do not want any more men to manage the mail, who are so desperately afraid that they may hurt slavery. We do not want any more politicians who are looking to the time of the restoration of the Union, and wondering if they can not get the southern vote to help them along in something when that time comes—commending themselves to the south by being able to say, "Oh, I was never radical against you at all—I was always a conservative!"

For my part I just bid defiance to every impulse of that kind, and to every man who entertains it. He and I stand the antipodes of each other—I standing wrapped around, every part of me from the head to the foot, in my country's flag, he hiding his face behind this country's flag and behind the flag of rebellion. I want in every portion, men of true and earnest stamp.

We want locomotive men, not stage coach men. We want men who go ahead. We want men who have the fire burning within them. We want men who have steam at their command. We do not want that our country shall be dragged along behind four lame, spavined, halt and blind stage-coach horses. [Laughter.] We want that, when we strike, every blow shall be a blow that tells, every movement a movement that crushes the rebels. [Applause.] We beat the man in this country who holds back every single atom from our country's glory, and his all to his country's good. We to that politician who tries with the great interests of this great nation for the sake of his party. We to him who tries to tarnish the flag of his country with any tendency or motion of his heart or his hand toward the rebellion which has so long plagued us.

Let us improve this occasion. Let us have here, what we ought to have everywhere, and what I have no doubt you are, let us have all that the country demands of us. Let us never forget to carry with us on all occasions the conviction that the only enemy we have to fight in this land at this moment is the institution of slavery, as it develops itself in the south; that the whole people shall come to understand that great truth, when every man shall see that every other man is fully indoctrinated with it.—Then comes the day of deliverance for our land. Then comes the halo of glory around the whole continent, which shall be seen in bright view during the long prospective of all future ages. [Great applause.]
